

>>> <JPeters1@Herc.com> 7/19/2006 10:26:27 AM >>>

Just read an article in the paper where the State of Michigan is considering modifying what jurors can use during deliberations, etc. I think it's an excellent idea to allow jurors to use notes, ask questions, and obtain clarification of topics. I am a note taker and use my notes frequently to keep facts and action items straight. If our process is to provide a fair trial with a fair decision, then it only seems right in my mind to allow the jurors a method of keeping the facts straight and truly understand what is at stake. I support a change in the way things are currently done in order to allow better decisions.

Regards,

Jeffrey C. Peters
Paper Technology and Ventures
Global Market Manager - Tissue & Towel
Office: (269) 324-5075
Website: www.ppd.herc.com